Cargill and AFS Intercultural Programs... Bringing the World Together

"Our family became involved in hosting an AFS Cargill student for one overriding issue: the very need to improve international understanding and communication..."

This is all about enriching the community we live in. For my family, this is about making a world of difference."

Paul Thell, General Manager

Cargill AgHorizons, host parent of Cargill scholar from Latin America

How You Can Be Involved

Cargill and AFS Intercultural Programs/USA are proud to collaborate on a student exchange program between communities with a Cargill presence in Latin America, Asia and North America. The program emphasizes Cargill's global presence and our commitment to our local communities.

We have many Cargill families involved. What about yours?

- * AFS is looking for families of all kinds to share in this partnership for the 2009 school year. A host family is asked to provide a bed, meals, guidance and support to a student carefully selected for this program.
- * AFS is also looking for people to volunteer as liaisons. Volunteer liaisons meet with one or two families and hosted students each month to help everyone gain the most from their time together.

This is one way Cargill employees can engage with their local community and make a difference.

AFS Intercultural Programs is the world's leader in international student and teacher exchange. AFS-USA sends more than 1,600 students to more than 50 countries each year; awards more than $1.5 million in financial aid and scholarships annually; places more than 2,800 students from abroad with U.S. families; and is supported by approximately 6,000 AFS volunteers in the U.S. and 30,000 volunteers around the world.

Host or Volunteer with AFS! Make a world of difference!

At a time when it is extremely important for Americans to engage with people from different cultures, AFS-USA is making it possible for outstanding young people from around the world to come to the U.S., live with host families and attend high school.

If you are interested in learning how you can get involved, as a host family or volunteer liaison, please complete and fax the interest form below to 1-503-419-9628:
